Redmen Lose 4-2 Before 6,000 at Varsity Arena

WARD PITFIELD scored a goal and played his best game of the season at Toronto this weekend. The starry left winger also collected a bad skate gash in his left foot, but will be set to go against the Blues next Friday at the Forum.

Heron Shines On Defense, Pitfield Is Gashed in Foot

Red Wing Society to Hold Annual Election

The Red Wing Society will hold its annual elections for new members today. One nominee is to be elected from each of the following groups:

Third year — Resident: Dorothy Ing, Helen Stevenson, Hope Stewart.

Third year—Non-resident: Marilyn Block, Rosalind Cohen, Mary Fisher, Margaret Forsyth, Noreen Jackson, Louise McFarlane, Nancy McGill, Martha Morgan.

Second year—Resident: Margot Lusby, Virginia MacDonald, Shirley Skelton.

Second year—Non-resident: Shirley Charpiloz, Rita Carriere, Isabel Gibb, Joan Mount, Nancy Solomon.

First year — Resident: Frances (Bunty) Piers, Peggy Pierce.

First year — Non-resident: Pat Carson, Barbara Hooper, Eva Marler.

The Varsity Blues failed to show their vaunted power, but still managed to come out on the long end of a 4-2 count against the McGill Redmen at the Varsity arena on Friday night. A wildly cheering crowd of some six thousand partisan fans turned out to see their heroes pull into a first place tie with the Redmen. At Kingston the Gaels won their first game of the season, beating the Carabins 6-3. These two clubs are now deadlocked in second spot.

On their showing of the week-end the Balemeyns showed themselves to be quite a bit weaker than the championship club of last year and the Redmen were confident that they could take them in the future. Having lost two games, the McGillians are now faced with the Herculean task of having to win all their remaining contests in order to cop the flag.

Old Dame fortune reared her ugly head and took a joy ride around the rink at the expense of the Campbell Clan as she steered no less than six drives against the piping around the Varsity goalmouth. Cy Biegler was her favorite victim as he rang the ball a grand total of four times with Warren Chippendale and Jack Millar repeating once each.

The Blues were first to break the ice in the opening session as Bob Henry fired a blistering shot between Jack Gellinau's pads at the seven minute mark. Three minutes later the Redmen knotted the score on the prettiest goal of the night. Ward Pitfield took a pass from Doug Heron and pulled a "Richard" as he cut in from his wing and flashed behind the defence to blast the disc into the lower right and corner.

The Torontonians made it 3-1 on markers by Phil Garratt and Henry's second tally before the Red and White hit the scoring sheet again. Gordie Gosselin started this play by passing to Captain Cy Biegler who slipped the puck across the goalmouth to the waiting Jack Millar. The tricky centreman made no mistake in rapping home the rubber.

Don Barr scored the last goal of the night three minutes later to round out the 4-2 total. The clubs battled on even terms the rest of the way with ragged play in the centre ice zone predominating. The tight defence thrown up by the blueshirts safely held the desperate Redmen at bay until the final bell.

Gellinau in Form

The general run of the play was fairly even with the Blues having the slight edge. Jack Gellinau was called upon to make twenty-five stops, many of the close-in variety, and turned in his usual brilliant performance. The defence was spotty at times with Doug Heron turning in his best effort to date. On the forward wall, Ward Pitfield and Jimmy Atkinson were the pick of the Redmen with Cy Biegler and Jack Millar going well. Digby, Henry, and Turcott were the top Torontonians.

Officials: referee, Pat Patterson; linesman, Jim Primeau.

First Period
1-Toronto Henry (Bark) . . . . . 6.12
2-McGill Pitfield (Heron) . . . . . 9.22

4-Toronto Henry (Turcott) . . . . . 18.04
Penalties: Pitfield, Winslow, Digby.

Second Period
5-McGill Millar (Gosselin) . . . . . 3.08
6-Toronto Bark (Henry) . . . . . 6.38
Penalties: Henry, Heron, Kryzanowski.

Scoring: None.
Penalties: Pitfield, Winslow.

I. R. C. Annual Welcomes 150 To Vancouver

(By Canadian University Press) Vancouver. — The University of British Columbia was host on the week-end of November 22nd to one hundred and fifty delegates and sixteen faculty advisors representing the International Relations Clubs in their respective universities and colleges from Winnipeg to Hawaii.

The chief topic under discussion at the conference was "Can the east-west split be reconciled?" Russia was criticized for not acting in the best interests of European economy. In the discussion of the main issues, the Canadian delegates did not differ from the Americans in their attitudes towards international problems, but the Americans were inclined to take a stronger stand against Communism. However, all parties agreed that Europe was tending to follow a middle course of Socialism within a private enterprise economy.

The American delegates voiced their full support of the Marshall Plan, but only as a means to aid a starving and ill-clothed Europe, and not as a medium through which to impose American political ideals.

The delegate from farthest afield, Earl Robinson, who flew to Vancouver from Hawaii, gave a vivid picture of the Pacific view towards the east-west question. R. Askiris, an Arab from Baghdad, attending an American college, gave some violent and well thought out opinions on the Palestine question.

Formal affair of the two-day conference was a banquet in Brock Hall on Friday evening. That evening there was also an informal dance. During the conference the students were quartered at Acadia Camp, a campus residence.

Federal government policy concerning residence of persons of Japanese birth in British Columbia almost caused some unpleasantness at the conference. When reports were heard that Lewis and Clark College, Portland, were sending two students of Japanese birth in their delegation, the RCMP took immediate action to allow the students' safe passage to and from the conference in Vancouver.

John Hladun Will Address PC's at 5 P.M.

John Hladun, author of "They Taught Me Treason", will address an open meeting of the McGill Progressive Conservative Club this afternoon at 5:00 p.m. in the Union Ballroom on the topic, "Communism and the Marshall Plan."

Mr. Hladun, a Ukrainian-Canadian by birth, has been a member of the Communist party in Canada for several years. He joined the Ukrainian Labour-Farmer Temple Association, an organization controlled by Communists, in Winnipeg, and later joined the Young Communist League, the junior branch of the Canadian Communist party. As a professional worker for the U.L.F.T.A., he travelled around Canada organizing Communist groups, and was chosen by Tim Buck as one of twenty Canadians to attend a course at the International Lenin University in 1931.

On his return to Canada Mr. Hladun decided to stay in the Communist party in an attempt to reform it from within. Finding this impossible, he resigned and has since spent a good deal of his time fighting Communism in Canada.

During a recent meeting at the University of Toronto, when the U. of T. L.P.P. Club presented Tim Buck, national leader of the Labor Progressive Party, as the speaker, Mr. Hladun, who was in attendance, challenged Mr. Buck from the floor after the L.P.P. leader had denied the existence of "a treason school in Lenin University in Moscow". Mr. Hladun asserted that such a school was again in operation, essentially the same as the one he had attended. . . . Mr. Hladun will also speak to the Dawson Progressive Conservative Club on Tuesday night at 8:30 in Room 11, Dawson Hall, on the same topic. Both meetings will be open to all students.

THOUGHTFUL LEADERSHIP NEEDED

The results of today's all-important elections for faculty representatives to the Students' Executive Council will be watched with interest and anticipation. Voting should run high, and competition will be keen.

But this election differs from those which have been held in previous years; the situation has altered considerably.

The Students' Executive Council has faced a difficult term, and prospects for the future are dim. The greatest financial problem which it has ever had to face is now disturbing the Council.

Thus far, as a result of its disbursements to the various campus clubs and societies, whose activities have increased greatly in scope, the Council has had to dig into its reserves, and finds itself in debt. During the next term, the Council will have to proceed cautiously, with wise, thoughtful direction.

It is for this reason that the Council has had to introduce one of the most important amendments to its Constitution which a Students' Society will face this Wednesday. An increase in student fees is one of the solutions to the problem.

An even more important factor, however, is the type of executive elected to the Council—the individual who is to be charged with the duty of making decisions relative to these problems.

It follows then, that students must choose carefully and wisely when they mark their choices on the ballots. Their representatives, who will hold office for a year, must, in the face of unprecedented conditions, be serious-minded, responsible individuals.

And if students will make their choice with these factors in mind—the best men for the jobs will be elected.—A.T.

PLAYERS' CLUB MAJOR PRODUCTION

Shown above are the members of the cast of "George and Margaret" which is to be presented in Moyse Hall on December 10 and 11 by the Players' Club. They are Grace Louise Braden, William Boswell, Mary Forde, Paul Horton, Penelope Hay, Malcolm Smith, Dennis Fraser, and Vivienne Slavovskii. The performance of Gerald Savory's play on Wednesday will mark the twenty-sixth year that the Club has been producing plays for the entertainment of McGill audiences. It was in 1921 that the Players' Club held its first meeting. In the two decades that followed the founding it became one of the most popular clubs on the Campus, producing some of the best amateur performances in Montreal. These included experimental plays such as Insect Play by the brothers Kapek and a number of one act workshop plays similar to those now put on by the Shoestring Theatre.

During the war the status and membership of the Club declined due to the accelerated program of the studies and the wartime restriction of Moyse Hall. Today the Players' Club is seeking to rise to new heights. In their newly inaugurated Shoestring Theatre, a greater opportunity is given to aspiring actors, producers, and directors to enable them to do experimental work. Next term the Club plans to produce four one act plays, the first two to appear in January.

"George and Margaret" is an amusing farce comedy about an English family called Garth-Bander whose children worry and distract their Mother with their 'modern' ideas. The play is under the direction of Joan Jackson Dunbar who was formerly with the English Department.

We recommend that all those interested in the Theatre support the Players' Club by attending George and Margaret.

Ye Faerie Knighte Goeth Crusadynge Against Fish

By SIR PATRICK SPENDS

"Man was born free but is everywhere in chains!" The wailing echoed lugubriously through the world. It found its way into the hearts of Lost Generation Mark II, amidst the dusty rubble and on the smoky battlefields that smelled of blood. But the Dragon that had devastated the 1947 Eden had at last been matched. "Sing thy deliverance!" cried the arriving Knight bold and fearless. "I have come to free the world from evil, corruption and poor management!"

From the tiny planet rose a mighty "Te Deum" to God all-kind. Women cried with happiness and men's eyes twinkled with hope. Even the crumbled buildings began to reconstruct themselves, for this Knight sans peur et sans reproche was fated to save the world. With gleaming eyes, in gleaming armor on a gleaming white horse, gleaming silver spear of Virtue in hand, he strode through Goddick Rates while handsome trumpeters announced to the prostrate victims of the Dragon that Salvation was here.

On and on he strode, till he nimbly sprang from his horse and majestically made his appearance in the Onion offices of the McGill Gaily. With a mighty sweep of his powerful hand he signed the document of salvation, and disappeared on his immaculate charger. His Mission had been accomplished—decadent humanity was going to be saved as of 9 a.m. the next day. With a smile on his angelic lips and joy in his saintly heart, the Knight crawled back into the woodwork of Heaven above. Inebriated with the satisfaction of duty well done, the Knight fell into the sleep of the just on his platform of gold planks and clay basement.

Redemption

Humanity awoke the next day to find the message. "I am not going to violate the rules and regulations," the Knight announced, "BUT—may I interfere."

Electrified, the weary victims of oppression raised their famished faces to the sky and listened. A sixth sense told them this was all-important—the crux of Life itself. The message continued "I have found out (hal' how, no one knows) that there are 2553 fish heads missing from the coffers of a Gaspe fisherman!" The screaming voices of the maddened crowd roared revenge on the thief.

"It is high time," continued the message as it neared the climactic point, "that rules and regulations were violated in the interest of those who believe in rules and regulations!"

"The man who ate all the fish heads is the fattest and fishiest fisherman in the community of Lower Slobboville. He self-fishly hid them underground for future use." The hollow eyes of the victims now poured hate to the heavens as the message, in higher and higher tones of saintly rage, went on. "One thousand fish heads rot under ground, when they could and should be left out in the light of the sun for all of you to pick up!"

Savior!

The crescendo abruptly dropped to a sympathetic whisper as the Knight's message concluded paternally: "I gasp with amazement at your blindness to this negligence."

"Give ME the charge of looking after the thousand fish heads" purred the punch line, "I'll see that they are properly distributed among you, all of you, all my friends, all of my friends."

This was the last day before the Gaily went to press. Just on time, no sooner, no later, the Knight had delivered his message and saved humanity. From here on, it was left to humanity to vote the Knight in and make sure the fish came out of the Great Bank.

Best Bogart-Bacall Yet . . . . . Capitol

And a great big kiss to Lauren Bacall . . . and a big, manly handshake to Humphrey Bogart . . . and somebody please rush a medal to Warner Bros. for an excellent movie "Dark Passage".

Although the basic plot of this week's Capitol Theatre offering is to be found in any picture with "San Quentin" in the title, we are treated to a familiar story very well done. One explanation for this may be that the screen-play and the direction were both done by the same person, Demers Davies.

Lauren Bacall is quite convincing in this picture, much more so than in "The Big Sleep". Humphrey Bogart's performance is almost novel in that he is only seen in about one-quarter of the picture. Agnes Moorehead is absolutely brilliant, as per usual, while the rest of the cast, mostly unknowns, lingers long after the picture has ended. The taxi-driver particularly, whose name I missed, is another Dane Clark, who benefits from several well-written scenes.

Through the short subjects, we fish in the Technicolor Florida Keys, sing songs of the Old West, get left in the cold with a "Cagey Canary" cartoon, and wallow in the luxury of an aerial view of the Army-Navy game.

Sweet Homicide . . . Radio Scripts . . . . . Palace

The Unsuspected is a much better than average murder film. Its strongest point is the development of suspense. This is done by leaving the audience in doubt as to every character until half way through the film. Only the surface of each protagonist is shown. Breezy quips, cool politeness, or acid remarks are all they exchange and this only establishing the relationship of the players to one another.

The finale is weaker but who can expect much, since the villain must receive his reward and the lovers must be united. Atmosphere is realized throughout the film by frequent details that are never over stressed. For example, a party is in progress and the hostess senses the need for life and requests that the pianist listen the music; he changes the tempo, she sings a few bars, moves her hips amateurishly and wanders off. The party quickens, the theatre is alerted, and the story and audience are kept in perfect time.

There are three shots and news. They should be taken after the feature as you will need a breather. Laudamus.

Advertisements . . . Seven Dead Women . . . Princess

"Lured" is the title of the picture at the Princess, with Lucille Ball and George Sanders, and minor roles by people like Boris Karloff. It is the grisly story of a homicidal maniac (not Mr. Karloff), who feels that women are more beautiful when dead. When the film opens, he has already improved the appearance of seven of them.

While "Lured" is cleverly suspenseful for a long while, it eventually wavers in trying to cover too much ground. Answering advertisements in the personal column is a device for introducing a lot of strange people, like Mr. Karloff, into the picture.

but it also makes the plot arbitrary. That is, the picture could continue indefinitely, or it could stop. Lucille Ball, as a lady employee of Scotland Yard, handles herself very well. George Sanders likewise. Minor characters are helpful, with the exception of Scotland Yard chief, Charles Coburn, who seemed awkwardly unaccustomed to his profession.

The technicolour second feature is "The Adventures of Don Coyote". It has a simple plot, and is superbly realistic in its treatment of such hitherto unexploited material as cattle rustlers, Mexican cowboys, a lady ranch owner, and equal parts of gun and banjo.—D. V.

Unconvincing Vixen . . . . . Good Cartoon . . . . . Loew's

If there's one thing Hollywood is able to produce, it's a good musical. Now, if The Foxes of Harrow were a musical a lot might be said for it, but it's not. It's the story of a scoundrel-gambler played by Rex Harrison, who gets off to a good start in life by being illegitimate. The next time we see him, he is being thrown off a Mississippi steamer on to a sand bar, supposedly for cheating at cards. If Victor McLaglen hadn't been so nose and goodhearted by picking him up, he would have drowned and everybody but the director would have been happy, but he was and so the story goes on. Our hero proceeds to New Orleans where he picks up a fortune, a plantation and a tooth-gritting acquaintance with the future vixen of Harrow, Maureen O'Hara. Miss O'Hara's acting is not convincing, but the rest of her is the same as ever, so who cares. The picture itself is just another Hollywood nondescript production. If you like cartoons, there's a good one shown with it.

G. J. E.

Another Mystery Story . . . . . Western . . . . . Imperial

The film "Take My Life" does not live up to the high standard set by the British films. In spite of a good cast, the plot falls short of being called good. It is not the usual type of "who done it" mystery stories, the murderer being revealed early in the picture, and the accused man's wife playing detective. The element of suspense is not lacking, and there are some tense and exciting moments.

The title "Take My Life" proves to be misleading in the beginning, and indeed the opening scenes promise more than the picture brings forth.

Francis L. Sullivan turned in his usual good performance as the prosecutor and narrator, but the vehicle did not seem to suit the talents of Greta Gynt who was the opera-singing wife of the accused. Hugh Williams and Marius Goring played the parts of the accused and the murderer respectively.

The other attraction "Smoky River Serenade" did not attract. It is a mediocre western with Ruth Terry and The Hoosier Hot-Shots. It comprises yodeling, song competitions, and exploding cigars; other than that it did not offer much in the way of entertainment.—P. C. and M. A.

Sonnet

Amis quand de vos bras l'étreinte sera vaine,
Quand le sang ne giclera plus au coeur raidi,
Quand rien ne rythmera d'un accord infini
Le patient travail embaumé dans mes veines,

Prenez ce corps, prenez cette ancienne carène
Où de secrets espoirs se mêlent à l'oubli
De baisers et de mains offertes dans la nuit.
De voyages audacieux à voiles pleines

D'amour; échouez-le sur le sable brûlant
Entre le jour qui luit et le secret instant
Où le ciel n'est plus qu'un océan de nuages,

Afin qu'ayant vécu dans l'irréel des mers
Il retrouve étant mort, écorché, sans sillage
La solidité mâle et mûre de la terre.

Triple Recital

Last Friday "Les Amis de l'Art" presented a free concert to its members; Plateau Hall being filled with young and old alike as three talented young Canadian artists, Harvey Grossman, of McGill, violinist, Marie-Germaine Leblanc, coloratura soprano, and Ronald Turini, pianist, gave performances deserving of the applause which they evoked.

Ronald Turini, the fourteen-year-old pianist, showed talents rarely found in pupils his age. He played the Mozart Sonata in A neatly and simply, a treatment which the music demands. The hackneyed last movement, Ronda a la Turka, was given a fresh, vivid performance which renewed interest in the music. The "Variations on the Name Abegg" by Schumann, which followed, showed surprising maturity of style besides the excellent technique which had already been shown in the Mozart. All the Schumannesque nuances were brought out, and the theme was never lost in the intricacies of the variation forms. Later a Chopin Waltz and Nocturne were more than adequately performed, an excellent interpretation of the Mendelssohn "Rondo Capriccioso" ending his portion of the recital.

Marie-Germaine Leblanc, the coloratura soprano, displayed a pleasant, facile voice besides demonstrating a charming platform manner. Her voice was at its richest in the middle range, and this was exploited in lieder by Brahms, Bach, Grieg, Bachelet and Debussy. The diction was quite good in the English and German selections, her natural, French diction coming to the fore in the excellently sung "Mandoline" by Debussy and "Chère Nuit" by Bachelet. The aria "O Zittre Nicht" from Mozart's "The Magic Flute" and Bishop's "Lol Heur The Gentle Lark" showed Miss Leblanc's coloratura to advantage; Schubert's ever-popular "Ave Maria" was added as an encore.

Harvey Grossman, the violinist, presented a well-chosen program, ranging from the classic to the romantic. A Sarabande and Gigue from an unaccompanied Bach Suite for Violin opened his group of selections. These were very well played; the ancient dance forms were given an efficient, light treatment which made clear the different voices and strict formality which was Bach's. A Beethoven Sonata for Violin and Piano Op. 30 No. 3 which followed was given an honest musically performance which stressed the romantic rather than the classical side of Beethoven. His portion of the program concluded with a beautifully played rendition of the first movement (Continued on Page 4)

McGill Loses Both Basketball Tilts To Yanks on Weekend

Big Chief Howie Ryan and his intrepid tribe of McGill Redmen swooped down on a section of New England for a basketball attack over the week-end, but found the natives waiting in ambush, as they were taken into camp on two successive nights by the University of Vermont and Dartmouth. In Hanover, N.H., on Friday night, the Montreal collegians renewed 1947-48 international hostilities by facing the big Green crew of Dartmouth, but they were defeated by an 81-41 count. Moving over to Burlington for an encounter on Saturday, a comparatively inferior University of Vermont squad piled up a 71-41 score. These two losses marked the first of the season for the Redmen, against four wins in local play.

Floor Hockey Playoffs Start Today at 5.15

One of the greatest rivalries has been built up in intramural sport activities and this rivalry will reach its climax at 5.15 today when the Combines and Plumbers tangle in a sudden death game in the McGill Floor Hockey League. At 6.15 the Virginians and Alkies (last year's Dawson-McGill Champs) meet in the first game of their 2 of 3 semi-final series.

The Combines and Alkies boast of individual high scorers in McVittie, and Lewis for the former, and Fullerton and Leavitt for the latter. The Virginians and Plumbers on the other hand show well-balanced teams with every man a scorer.

Unless otherwise notified, the second games of the series will take place on Tuesday with Combines meeting this winner of the Plumber-Combine game, and Alkies and Virginians playing their second game of their series.

WINTER CARNIVAL NEWS

The idea for McGill's winter extravaganza this coming February originated within the M.O.C. ranks and therefore we are playing a major part in its organization and preparation. The planning of the evening atop Mount Royal is headed by our genial president Bill Ward, and broad as his shoulders are, they are not big enough to carry the full load alone.

The aforementioned evening will consist of many events such as torchlight parades, skiing and skating parties, tobogganing, dancing in the Chalet and the highlight spectacle, that of choosing the Carnival Queen. The preparations for all this take a large amount of work and co-operation, hence this appeal.

Participation in the planning and organizational work by a large number of M.O.C.ers is necessary to make this affair a success and will make the carnival that much more enjoyable to those that participated in its preparation. No special mental or physical requirements are necessary and this opportunity is open to both males and females. If interested (and we feel sure that you are) phone Bill Ward, WA. 3727, or Stu Green, WA. 2607, for more information.

Popowich Stars As Dawson Cage Crew Beaten by Comfort

By ED MACDONALD

St. Johns, Que.—Napoleon might have had an excuse for losing the battle of Waterloo, the Dodgers might have had an excuse for losing the world series, and Joe Walcott might have had an excuse for losing out to Joe Louis, but the Dawson Dynamos had no excuse for losing a basketball game Friday night. Playing against Comfort Clothes in a scheduled intermediate MBL tilt at Orlick Gym, the Red and White hoopsters made an impressive start by dominating the play and rolling up a commanding lead during the first quarter. The dynamos seemed to be on the road to their first league victory when the Comfies put on a drive to knot the count and then take a small lead. This lead proved to be the psychological factor in the Dynamos' downfall.

Mont St. Louis Defeats McGill Jr. Pucksters

By CY LEWIS

After getting off to a fast start and a three goal lead in the first period and a half of play, the McGill Redmen folded up before the determined attacking of a scrappy Mont St. Louis team, and ended up on the short end of a 6-3 count. The Redmen fought hard all the way through, but at times showed a complete lack of cohesion, and this along with some loose defensive work was the main contributory factor to the defeat. At the same time a bad case of horseshoes affected the M.S.L. goaler for the Redmen marksmen hit the goalpost on no less than three occasions.

RUSSEL SCORES

The first period opened at a fast clip and after four minutes had gone by defenceman Ross Parsons picked up a loose puck in his own end, skated it to the blueline, and passed it ahead to Pep Peppard. Pep flipped the disc to Bob Russell who parked it nicely behind the Monts' goaler to give the Redmen the lead. McGill kept pressing hard but could make no further score though they tried everything in the book in an attempt to do so.

After five minutes of the middle canto had elapsed, Maguire pushed the puck over his own blue line to Arnold Taylor who went the rest of the way alone to tally McGill's second goal. A few minutes later Bob Russell grabbed the rubber during a scramble in front of the M.S.L. net and passed it to Pep Peppard who banged it in to put the Redmen ahead 3-0. It was at this point that the Redmen seemed to fall apart and twice within two minutes Mont St. Louis bulged the twine behind Murray Magor. With thirty seconds of the period left, Marcel Quesnel evened it up pour le Mont with his second goal of the period.

Although they went out for the final set-to with the best intentions, the Redmen couldn't seem to get clicking and it was all Mont St. Louis the rest of the way. Delisle converted Quesnel's slap shot to put les Monts in the lead, and Denny Pepin put the game on ice when he took Quesnel's pass, broke into the clear and cleverly beat Beginners are especially welcome and are requested to come early. Don't worry about partners as the sessions usually balance out even.

Old members are reminded that it is necessary to rejoin the organization every year. If you have not done so, bring your dollar to the Athletics Office in the Gym, and receive this year's badge to regain your privileges. Believe me we need the money for operating expenses.

ARTS and SCIENCE

JEAN POULIOT

Jean Pouliot is a French-speaking Canadian who has lived amongst English-speaking Canadians for a number of years, and is perfectly bilingual. He is a veteran of the R.C.A.F., with active service as an Air Gunner on the famous Alouette Squadron, and is at present an Officer Candidate in the University Naval Training Division. He is a man capable of rational and objective thinking and has constructive ideas on student problems. I feel he is the candidate best suited to represent the Faculty of Arts and Science on the S.E.C.

GRANT ROBERTS,
Arts III.

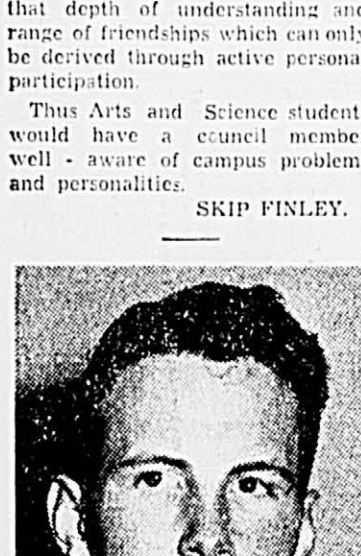

ROSS CAVEY

Ross Cavey hails from N.D.G. where he attended public and high school. He is 23 and served with the R.C.N.V.R. as a seaman for 2 years before being commissioned. He served in the English Channel, Bay of Biscay, and on convoys to Murmansk, Russia.

In high school Ross was a perfect, commanded the Cadet Corps, and excelled in all competitive sports. In 1943 he played football for the Navy in the Q.R.F.U.

He entered McGill in May, 1948. Since that time Ross has been active on the campus and is treasurer of this year's Prom Committee. His degree of popularity is very high which can be largely attributed to his congeniality and desire to make friends. He would serve the Commerce Faculty most conscientiously and effectively.

LEN BEATON

From rock-climbing to the M.O.C., to winning inter-collegiate debates and a Gold Key for Debating; from working on the Athletics Night; from leading the Opposition in a Model Parliament; from frequent visits to R.V.C. to maintaining an honourable standing in Economics and Political Science, Len Beaton's capabilities and competence have been felt in the activities which go to make the life of McGill, giving him that depth of understanding and range of friendships which can only be derived through active personal participation.

Thus Arts and Science students would have a council member well-aware of campus problems and personalities.

SKIP FINLEY.

ARTHUR MATHEWSON

Art Mathewson is to my mind the outstanding candidate running in the forthcoming elections to the Students' Executive Council. He possesses a keen mind, outstanding qualities for leadership, and an ability to think out and act decisively on any problem.

Since coming to McGill Art has been very active in extra-curricular activities, and shows signs of being one of the most important men on the campus next year. During the football season he handled his duties as manager of the Q.R.F.U. team in exemplary fashion, and hardly had the season ended when he turned toward his work on the Athletics Night. As publicity chairman his great ability and willingness to work have been shown time and again.

PETER H. CAMERON

In recommending Pete Cameron for engineering representative to the students council, I think a few points about him and his activities are in order for those who do not know him.

Pete came to McGill in '43, and after a year of studies joined the Artillery. At the close of the war, he resumed his studies, being in the first group at Dawson College. Since he has been at McGill, he has shown a decided interest in student activities. He has been a playing manager of both the junior and senior water polo teams for the past two years—playing on the senior intercollegiate team this year. This fall he was on the committee for the Plumber's Ball.

In view of the above, and of his interest and capabilities in student affairs, I do not think we can find a better man than Pete.

R. C. PATERSON

Wide experience gained through active participation in a broad range of student activities equips Bob well for the representative position. He has already shown his ability and his "carry through" in varied jobs he has undertaken.

As a Council member he would have an understanding of what is needed and what is to be done. His enthusiasm and interest could be counted upon to give to campus affairs capable and energetic leadership.

R. BRUCE MCAUSLAND

Bruce McAusland is a naval veteran of three years' service during which time he gained experience in executive work. He is keenly interested in all student activities especially those affecting the engineering student. At McGill before he entered the Navy, he was active in sports and last year he was a member of the Plumber's Ball Committee.

I fully believe he will carry out his platform to the best of his ability and will co-operate fully with the executive of the E.U.S. in all matters needing action by the S.E.C.

GIL ROSENBERG

Gil Rosenberg is a veteran of the last war. He left university in 1942 to enlist in the army. While overseas he served with the Essex Scottish, as a lieutenant, in Northwest Europe, and was wounded. He was discharged in 1945 and entered Med. 1.

Since his return Gil Rosenberg has been active in student affairs. Last Christmas he was the administration chief at the 2nd Annual Convention of the National Conference of Student Veterans. At present he is on the executive of the M.U.S.

Gil Rosenberg is a conscientious worker and has constantly stood for resolute leadership of a type necessary to meet the needs both of medical students and of students in general.

MEDICINE

J. FYFE MACDONALD

Rarely does a candidate for an executive position at McGill present such a wide and varied background of experience in student affairs and University activities as J. Fyfe MacDonald. Coming to McGill in 1938, Fyfe had, before his three and a half years naval service, been active on the Arts and Science Undergraduate Executive, had been president of the Inter-Fraternity Council, and served on the Red and White Revue Executive for three years. In addition to this, he found time to play hockey and intercollegiate football, as well as maintaining an enviable scholastic record.

Since his return from the navy in 1945, Fyfe has taken an active interest in medical affairs, and is at present managing editor of the C.A.M.S.I. journal.

His broad experience, his sound judgment, his unbiased attitude, this capacity for hard work, combined to make him a candidate to be proud of as medical representative of the S.E.C.

R.V.C.

CAROLINE E. SMITH

Caroline, in her two and a half years at McGill, has been an active member of the student body. Cheerful and fun-loving she is always ready to give a helping hand in all university undertakings.

On the 1946-47 R.V.C. House Committee and in the Red Wing Society she has proven her ability to undertake and finish all jobs with equal enthusiasm. She is a participating member of the Playboys' Club, the Red and White Society, and the McGill Outing Club. Her willingness and interest have been shown in connection with the newly-organized Fine Arts Society, and in her work with the Arts and Science Undergraduates' Society.

We feel that Caroline has the qualities that are necessary in a capable representative of all women students on the Students' Executive Council.

Signed,
MARY ANNE SKANE,
ANNE FLEMING.

ANN RYAN

Ann probably needs very little introduction as she has taken part in such a wide range of campus activities. We know her as a keen debater, a bruise-collecting hosteller and an organizer of no mean ability. She works as hard and conscientiously on an executive as she does peddling a bike—and it seems to get as much fun out of it too!

Ann would certainly give her time, energy and imagination to the responsibilities of this position, both in carrying out particular projects and suggestions and in taking her share of the many routine jobs involved.

We give Ann our whole-hearted support as a person who will always represent the women students fairly and work vigorously on our behalf.
